

Davis+Gilbert Receives Nationwide Recognition in Media Law International's 2017 Rankings

Davis+Gilbert, for the fourth consecutive year, has been ranked by Media Law International in its annual guide to the world's leading firms for media law. This year, the firm was promoted to the highest echelon, Tier 1, along with only six other firms across the United States, based on qualitative research and objective market analysis from law firms, clients and other market participants. In addition to the firm recognition, Ashima A. Dayal, a partner in the firm's Intellectual Property + Media and Advertising + Marketing practice groups, was highlighted for her "industry expertise and diligence."

About Media Law International

Media Law International is the exclusive guide to leading media law firms around the world. The annual publication provides comprehensive coverage of firms and practitioners with media law expertise, across 47 jurisdictions, as well as country-specific intelligence reports outlining market trends and developments.

About Davis+Gilbert's Intellectual Property + Media Practice Group

Davis+Gilbert's Intellectual Property + Media practice group consists of attorneys who bring a wide range of experience in the entertainment and journalism fields, and deep expertise in intellectual property litigation and media transactions. Unique among law firms of its size, Davis+Gilbert's media practice is complemented by the firm's historical strength in marketing, entertainment and technology, which allows the firm to provide cutting-edge advice to traditional and non-traditional media clients alike. The group's attorneys are well known for their thorough knowledge of new media platforms, new revenue streams and innovative ways of engaging with audiences, which all media clients must navigate to thrive in the digital age.