Overview

Keith Pulling supports the delivery of business-focused solutions in complex corporate and transactional matters. He ensures all aspects of mergers, acquisitions, lending and finance transactions run smoothly while helping clients achieve their goals.

By understanding how each facet of a deal can impact a client's business objectives, Keith's commercial-minded approach is an asset to both straightforward and novel transactional challenges. He documents deals with meticulous detail and pinpoints key regulatory issues that can impact business decisions. His concise and straightforward explanations of intricate legal concerns help teams stay focused on next steps.

Keith assists teams throughout the lifecycle of a transaction, from initial planning to drafting and reviewing documents, and closing. He often supports diligence activities to address potential risks and ensure client concerns are accurately reflected throughout.

Before Davis+Gilbert, Keith was an associate at Sullivan & Cromwell where he gained experience working on a wide range of corporate transactions, including M&A, capital markets, finance and restructurings.
